A NEW DVD Staff Training Series presented by the Institute for Applied Behavior Analysis®

This series is divided into 4 Modules with a Roundtable Discussion at the end of each Module. The Roundtable Discussions are designed to give the viewer additional insight into the topics discussed in each Module. Each Module includes a Leader's Manual, Lecture Notes, additional related reading material, tests and answers. Listed below is a brief description of each Module, and then a following list of each Module, subdivided into Sessions and the runtime (hours:minutes:seconds) for each DVD. For full descriptions of each module, please visit www.iaba.com.

Module 1:

Nonaversive Behavioral Support and Basic Principles of Positive Programming

In this module we will provide an overview of a person-centered, multi-element model for providing positive behavioral supports and describe in detail the roles that ecology, positive programming and reinforcement play within this model.

Module 2:

Comprehensive Functional Assessment and Advanced Support Strategies

In this module we will provide in-depth training in behavioral assessment, functional analysis of behavior and how to use this information to develop positive behavioral support plans.

Module 3:

Emergency Management and Reactive Strategies within a Positive Practices Framework

When punishment is no longer used to manage behavior, people ask "What do we do when the behavior occurs?" "What do we do in a crisis?" This module will provide an overview of emergency management and reactive strategies that might be used as part of a complete multielement support plan.

Module 4:

Assuring Staff Consistency and the Provision of Quality Services: An Introduction to an Effective Quality Improvement and Outcome Evaluation System

This is the "magic." Based on the book, The Periodic Service Review, this module on maximizing staff consistency in service implementation utilizing effective staff supervision strategies is a "must-have" for everyone who has participated in the previous three modules and is relevant as well, for members of the management team.
